

DRUGGISTS' SCHOOL IS BEING PLANNED

Meeting in New Haven Wednesday to Consider One

Hartford, Nov. 11.—A meeting of the incorporators of the proposed Connecticut college of pharmacy will be held in New Haven Wednesday to consider establishment of the college.

A chapter was granted by a special act of the general assembly of 1921 to 25 druggists in the state empowering them to start such a college.

The Connecticut laws now provide that after January 1, 1925, all applicants for licenses as pharmacists must have a high school education and be graduates of some reputable college of pharmacy.

The meeting Wednesday, is to consider what can be done to establish in the near future a college where students may take a three years' course in pharmacy.

It was said today by one of the incorporators that if the college could be organized it would start in rented buildings.

There has been some discussion of an informal nature with officials of Yale university along the line of a college of pharmacy at Yale, but nothing definite has yet resulted.

PLANT IS BROUGHT TO NEW BRITAIN

Bridgeport Equipment Added to Rule Shop Facilities

The Stanley Rule and Level plant and what it consists of was the subject of an address to the New Britain Lions' club today by Philip B. Stanley, vice president of the Stanley Works and general manager of the Rule and Level division.

Dr. Joseph Potts, on behalf of the Red Cross membership drive, said 200 members.

Secretary James E. O'Brien spoke on American Education Week and the program to be conducted by the civic clubs at the Walnut Hill school next Tuesday. It was voted to join the other clubs and meet at the school.

William Brennecke won the attendance prize which was a briar pipe.

It was reported that the Colts girls bowling team of Hartford was the first to challenge the New Lions bowling team. This team has issued a challenge to the Kiwanis and Rotary clubs and Otto Heinrich has offered to donate a silver loving cup to the local civic club which wins a tournament. To date the other clubs have not accepted the challenge.

Mr. Stanley in his address gave a brief history of the Stanley Rule and Level company from the time of its beginning in 1850. He told him it started making boxwood rules. In 1853 it purchased the rule it started making boxwood rules. In 1853 the firm, then known as A. Stanley & Co., added levels to its line and incorporated as the Stanley Rule and Level Co.

In the early 60's the business of E. C. Stearns was purchased. A few years later the Bailey plant business was bought out. In 1907 the John S. Fray Co., making bit braces and breast and hand drills in Bridgeport was purchased and the plant has been undergoing dismantling during the past month and its equipment removed to New Britain.

In 1913 the company bought the Atlas Tool Co., in Newark, N. J., and added the Atlas line of hammers and woodchoppers to its other products. In 1907 the plant near Montreal, Canada, was purchased in order to compete with the Canadian markets and in 1916 the Steel Square Mfg. company at South Shaftbury, Vt., was purchased.

Today the plant manufactures a complete line of carpenter tools except saws and auger bits. The zigzag rule has to some extent superseded the old boxwood rule, he stated, although the latter still is an important line.

Other products were the iron planes, he explained that the wooden plane is a dying product; levels, try squares and levels, bit braces, screw drivers and a large variety of special tools such as vices, chisels, cold chisels, punches, plumb bobs etc. are made. Screw drivers are being made in a plant recently acquired at Plantsville, Conn. The four square line of 22 pieces for general household use, he said is proving a popular seller.
